Finding a Perfect Match

- Everyone has a good idea; but not all ideas are fundable, and not everyone has the commitment to succeed in grant-application writing.
- Every research project begins first with a need, and then comes the idea for the research project. It is important to understand that need drives the activities of the research project.
- And it is the need that will get the idea funded. In order to ensure success, you must ensure that your idea fits the basic need of the funding agency, conforms to their mission statement, and that others, besides yourself, think that your idea is fundable.

Finding a Perfect Match: Checklist

- There is a need in your area of expertise/service and you have an idea for a solution to this need.
- Stop and Consider: Double check that someone, other than you, thinks that this is a priority. You need to assess your idea's potential for success and modify it if necessary. Ensure that you have the capabilities to pursue this work. Do you have the resources? Can you justify the approach? Do you have enough time to commit to this?

Finding a Perfect Match: Checklist

- ❑ Search for your idea's founding need and topic
- ❑ Searching Funding Databases. Pay attention to the current funding strategies of each funding agency as you look. Look close for changing trends through historical data surrounding your field. Ensure that your idea is truly new and unique. Look at what the sponsor has funded before.

Finding a Perfect Match: Checklist

- ❑ Next, you need to identify several possible funding agencies who match your research idea:
  - Your idea should immediately fit into the funding agency's mission statement,
  - The agency should have recent award winners in your localized field, and
  - You need to be qualified to submit an application to the agency for funding.

Reviewing Grant Opportunities for Alignment/Fit

- Grant eligibility requirements, do you and/or your organization meet the qualifications?
- Do the goals you and /or your organization want to accomplish align with what the sponsor wants to fund?
- Will the grant provide enough resources (money) to accomplish your goals or will you need to seek other funding sources?

Collaborative Partners Initiative

Next Steps

What to do after you have identified a possible funding source:

- Flush out your idea and project plan
- Determine due dates of Letters of Interest/Intent and/or application
- Determine what documents you will need, such as:
  - Resumes of key personnel
  - 501 C3 letter
